Greetings,

May 2014

It's been a fairly quiet month with the exception of a lot of emotional/behavior issues with some of the boys, both at home and school. Paul and Micky have also taken a long overdue vacation. Ten days in Israel, returning home on 2 June. Adam's father arrives at the Fold on 1 June to help with the long list of "to do's".

Early this month a nearby farmer came and asked if we'd like to scavenge the leftovers in their butternut field. They had already harvested and wanted to plow the field, but there were still some butternut left. We loaded up the older children in the truck a few days later and spent 1 ½ hours going through the field. There was a lot of half eaten (bugs and animals) squash, but we took the other half and found quite a few that were untouched. We pretty much filled up the back of the truck. We took it all home, enlisted the small children and house moms, then sorted and cleaned it all. Cutting off bad parts and cutting up a lot of it for the freezer. We also shared our bounty with two other charities in the area. It was a long day, but what a blessing.

The day after we sent out last month's newsletter, the owner of a local restaurant (Spur) told us he was going to get soccer goals for our new soccer field. Then that same afternoon, I received an e-mail from our UK friends who work for Gloucester rugby team. They told us of their plans to raise funds for rugby goals for the field, and hopefully come for a visit in February next year to install them. I love days like those. They're so encouraging.

Birthday's this month were Micky, Kamo and Sello. Our much loved neighbors next to us have moved. But fortunately they have sold their property to a very nice couple. Elizma loves to bake and wants to make the birthday cakes for the children. Another nice blessing.
